

ITTF Junior Circuit, Indore 15-19 Sep. 2009

The city derives its name from the 18th century Indreshwar temple. Situated in the heart of the Malwa Plateau it was the base of the Holkars, former rulers of this erstwhile state. Indore, in fact, was planned and built by Rani Ahilyabai Holkar. Today, it is a throbbing, vibrant city colored by its brave past. It is naturally endowed with a beautiful landscape and salubrious climate. Of interest here are numerous monuments associated with the Holkars.

What to See:

Rajwada: Two hundred years ago, this seven storied historical building formed the nerve centre of all trading activities. Even today it stands proud in the market place, a silent tribute to the craftsmanship of unknown artisans of centuries ago.

Kanch Mandir: The 'Palace of Mirrors' is a quaint Jain Shrine, close to Rajwada. The attraction of this palace, as the name indicates, is in the myriad mirrors studded on the walls and the ceiling giving rise to multiple reflections.

Lal Baugh Palace: Currently this is the residence of Usha Raje, direct descendent of the Holkars, whose ancestral palace it used to be. Exquisitely constructed with great detailing, it reflects the royal taste of the Holkars. Chhatri Baugh: Across Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh the tradition of erecting chhatris or cenotaphs was quite prevalent. An example of this can be seen here at Chhatri Baugh where the cenotaphs were erected in memory of the Holkar rulers and their family.

Near Indore:

Shopping: Indore is famous for its glass bangles and leather toys. The handicrafts are mostly made by tribals using the wax method of casting. This is now a rare, lost art which you will not find anywhere else.

Air: Indore is connected by air with Bhopal, Bombay, Delhi. Rail : Indore is on the Western Railway line and is connected with all major cities in India. Road: Indore is connected by good motorable roads with Agra (605 Kms.), Ahmedabad (456 Kms.), Bhopal (187 Kms.), Bombay (602 Kms.), Delhi (809 Kms.), Gwalior (486 Kms.), Khajuraho (574 Kms.), Meheshwar (90 Kms.), Mandu (105 Kms.) and Ujjain (53 Kms.)
